The boats came into collision shortly before midnight last night, the Maine being en route from Twenty-third street to Williamsburg, while the Osprey was going the other way.

The collision occurred in midstream, and three windows of the Maine on the mun's, or port, side of the boat, with the guard-ralls and stanchions were carried away, and the fan-tail of the Osprey was left on the deck of the Maine. At the time of the accident there were about thirty passengers on the Osprey and twice as many on the Maine. Fortunately, few of them were women, but still the excitement was very great.

Many of the passengers made wild rushes for life-preservers, and had they not been restrained by a few cooler heads, would have jumped into the river. Luckily none of the passengers was injured except by the shock, and the boats, although damaged, were still able to float, and reached their slips in safety. and twice as many on the Maine.
